MARSELIS

Inspired by the bent tubing around local danish street signs, design duo kaschkasch have created a family of table and floor lamps sharing the same arched silhouette. The light source comes from a tilting circular disc, which can be adjusted to create both an indirect ambient and direct task light beam. The lamp body is crafted from powder coated die cast aluminium and steel, and the light source is an injection moulded polycarbonate opalescent lens that conceals a flat panel of light. Both lamp designs are available in different colours and are suitable for a variety of private and corporate settings.
